The Reading List

1. Which books on the reading list had you read? Were any of them particular favorites of yours? Were there any titles that were new to you?
2. When he picks up The Time Traveler's Wife, Mukesh reflects that "this book felt like one little glimpse into Naina's soul, into their marriage, their life together." Is there a single book that would offer that same insight into your soul or your life? How does the experience of reading these books help Mukesh process his grief and loneliness after Naina's death?
3. Part of the reason Mukesh is compelled to begin reading is because his granddaughter, Priya, is an avid reader. The author, Sara Nisha Adams, says that this novel was partly inspired by the way she bonded with her own grandfather through their shared love of books. Are there people in your life who you share the world of books with?
4. Aleisha's mother, Leilah, is often barely functional because of mental illness, and Aleisha always craves a connection with her. "She believed the book...and the list...they might bring her mother back to her." Does Leilah draw closer to Aleisha? What does reading do for their fractured mother-daughter relationship?
5. Aleisha blames herself for Aiden's suicide: "I missed so much. I just had my head stuck in those books." Was Aiden's death a surprise to you as well? Is Alisha being unfair to herself?
6. Mukesh later consoles Aleisha by saying: "Please try to remember that books aren't always an escape; sometimes books teach us things. They show us the world; they don't hide it." What did books teach or reveal to the different characters in this novel? Which books have had that effect in your own life?
7. Even though reading is a solitary activity, in this book it helps bring people together. How does the list affect the larger community where Aleisha and Mukesh live?
8. Aleisha tells Mukesh: "No one can ever really understand what other people have gone through. But people should try." Do books help foster that empathy? Do the different people in this book come out at the end having greater understanding of one another because they've really tried? What about Mukesh and his daughters? Aleisha and Leilah?
9. How does the experience of reading help push Mukesh towards Nilakshi? Is that what Naina would have wanted for him? How does her letter at the end confirm that?
10. If you could compose your own reading list, which books would be on it and why?
